News & Notes

KOLPING LENTEN PROJECT

All or our Kolping members have the opportunity to contribute to a project that promotes the teachings of Father Kolping and demonstrates the commitment of our members to his work—we call this our Lenten Project. At our convention in New York, delegates voted to support a national effort to contribute to one of the projects run by Kolping International—Life-stock farming in Kenya. Kolping International invites Kolping members in Kenya to participate in a program that aims to teach the skills needed to raise goats, produce milk and utilize dung by-products for sale, use and sustainability. Kolping Kenya has existed since the mid 1980s and currently includes over 3,500 in five different regions. In a highly agriculture-dependent country, raising goats can mean the difference between living in poverty and enjoying a simple life. We can make a difference for these Kolping members and show them our support! We hope all Kolping members will consider donating at least $10 towards this Lenten Project.

Here is a website that will provide all the details about the project:

Please send all donations to Catholic Kolping Society, 95 Montrose Point Road, Montrose, NY 10548, ATT: JAN KESSLER

Yorkville was once an internationally famous section in New York City from the 30s through the 60s known as Yorkville/Kleindeutschland. Settled by a population of middle and eastern European countries, its largest ethnic group was German speaking. In keeping with tradition, an effort was started in 1990 by the Yorkville Kleindeutschland Historical Society to preserve some of Yorkville's heritage, now lost forever, through our language club.

We are a 27 year old co-operative of students and teachers who wish to preserve the study of the German language and culture in an informal environment. The fee is $475.00 for the 15 week, 30 hour course. Students may join during a semester at a pro-rated rate.

Our club makes no profit. We are supported solely by our members, and we offer German learning opportunities, and social and cultural events. We also march in the German/American Steuben parade every September. 2017 Reflections: Let's Make America Pray Again

Father Richard Bretone's New Years Homily submitted by Katrina Dengler

Dear sons and daughters,

What a deeply strange year it has been, and a more deeply strange year will commence. So strange.

You have heard by now almost ad nauseam that this will be the time when America will be great again. You have heard this over and over, and it has meant so many things to so many people:

- Economic prosperity
- American manufacturing prowess
- Pride in those who are citizens of this great country
- Fearless leadership in world affairs
- A military that is the envy of all the world
- A flourishing populace that harkens to an age when God and country were one!

But, my children, my dear children, if you want to make America great again, then you have to make America pray again!

You see, prayer was the secret behind the whole past nostalgia that people long for and remember. They recall the good jobs, the abundant work opportunities, the ability of one salary to support a whole family. People remember when the military was revered and those who ran the country as political leaders were esteemed.

It was such a simpler time. You could trust your friends and you knew your enemies. It was a more obedient time. People listened to reason. They enlisted experts. They had faith in the democratic process. There was an innocence and lack of cynicism. There was a pattern to relationships and a certain natural order that all people followed.

What made this so? How did they know what to do? And how did they accept the advice of those who knew more or better? How did order rule in their souls and deep faith in their hearts?

This is really the essential question because without order of thought and faith of heart there can be no greatness anywhere, any place, at any time in America, or anywhere else!

What made America great the first time was its prayer—its deep prayerfulness. How America loved its God! In fact, it was what literally made America—religious freedom—the desire to freely worship God in the many ways that He can be conceived and known to humanity. America went “wild” for religion.

So many immigrants flocked to her shores, because of this promise of freedom. Remember all the sacrifices those immigrants made for their churches. How they pitched in and built magnificent edifices to their God. They had such holy pride and a deep mission to find a place of worship and build a structure to finally worship their God without fear of retaliation or tyranny or menacing or prejudice!

These immigrants knew this was what made America great! And they did not take it for granted! They cherished every prayer, every hymn, every sermon, because they knew it was a precious gift given to them by the founding fathers of this great nation. They never took it for granted, so pray they did—on Sundays, in the evenings, on their return home with their families. Fr. Peyton's dictum that “the family who prays together, stays together” was followed by so many people!

The closeness, the forgiveness, the gentleness, the trust, the intimacy of prayer was shared, and the feeling of connection was forged by: a Hail Mary, an Our Father and a Glory Be!

My God, what a simpler time!
My God, what a great time!
My God, what a time for America!

Alas, you cannot have the appearance of greatness, the externals of greatness without being great on the inside. If America neglects prayer, her greatness will be fleeting, if, indeed, she achieves it at all! It will be counterfeit and phony and a sham, because it will not have the roots of greatness firmly planted in her God!

Whatever else this country may aspire to, whatever else it is called to by the beats of war or the jangling of riches, if it is not called to prayer, it is called to nothing—to emptiness and loneliness, to disappointment and despair!

Yes, you entrepreneur turned politician turned leader of the free world, you were given a God granted opportunity to do what you said you could do making America great again!

I challenge you and the country you now lead to go beyond the appearances of greatness to the core of this superlative—Make America the best again!

Lead by intensity.
Lead by conviction.
Lead by reason.

Guide with the heart, and know all these through union with your God, and that union is prayer—personal prayer, communal prayer, national prayer.

For America to be made great again, it must pray again!

My children, my faithful ones, be there for the people. Teach them what you have been practicing for so long. Teach them how to pray.

(I begin each year by “asking” the Blessed Mother in prayer what we need to hear in order to orientate our upcoming year. This reflection is the fruit of that prayer. May it bear much fruit! God bless)

Stories of Interest

Heinrich Steinmeyer as a young member of the SS. Photograph: Tina Norris/Rex/Shutterstock

“Home is where the heart is” so goes the saying. This was never more beautifully illustrated than in the life of former S.S. soldier Heinrich Steinmeyer. Born in Germany in 1928, he grew up under the indoctrination of the Nazi tyrants. By age 17, he was a member of the Waffen S.S. and stationed in Norway. He was captured and “fortunately” was interned in a P.O.W. camp at Cultybraggan near the village of Comrie in Scotland.

The people he found were friendly and it disproved the brain-washing he had been exposed to all his life. The landscape was breathtaking and he had an “umschwung” (about-face) about Scots. He became a great fan of the Scots and the natural beauty of the area.

He was mustered out of the military; but made frequent visits to the people and scenery that had enchanted him while a prisoner.

Having done well at home, he left his estate of $485,000 to the Comrie development to “help the elderly”. Further he wanted his ashes scattered among the hills he loved gazing at while imprisoned.

“Tis the Season to be Merry”

submitted by Martin A. Kelly

Christmas is the time of year to be jolly; but not for someone like the hard task master Ebenezer Scrooge the villain in Charles Dicken’s “A Christmas Carol”. He returned Christmas greetings with the catch word “Humbug” meaning “farce” or “foolery”.

There are several theories on the origin of the word “Humbug”. One feels the play by the Anti Napoleonic Forces (England, Prussia, and some Germanic states) to undermine the value of the franc had something to do with it. Since most of the counterfeit francs were made in Prussia they were called “Humbuggs; and whence “humbug” meant illegitimate scam, falsehood.

KOH Beekeepers Visit ▶

Submitted by Lou Colletti & Linda Szoldatits

On Sunday, January 15th the KOH Beekeepers, Frank Kurcz, Richie Polvilonis & Joe Szoldatits came to check on the Bee Hives. Frank is listening for activity & making sure they are ok and happy? The Beekeepers are hoping for a hardy and healthy Spring Flowering Season. They would like bring back the environment that the previous Beekeepers had. "Information, Please" submitted by the late Jack McGee

How a Boy and His Telephone Operator Formed a Lovely, Lasting Friendship

In this 1996 Reader's Digest Classic, originally published in 1966 as "The Voice in the Box," a little boy forges a strong connection with the local telephone operator. —by PAUL VILLIARD

Gérard Dubois for Reader's Digest

When I was a young boy, my father had one of the first telephones in our neighborhood.... I remember the polished, old case fastened to the wall. The shiny receiver hung on the side of the box. I was too little to reach the telephone, but used to listen with fascination when my mother talked to it.

Then I discovered that somewhere inside the wonderful device lived an amazing person. Her name was "Information Please" and there was nothing she did not know. Information Please could supply anyone's number and the correct time.

My personal experience with the genie-in-a-bottle came one day while my mother was visiting a neighbor. Amusing myself at the tool bench in the basement, I whacked my finger with a hammer, the pain was terrible, but there seemed no point in crying because there was no one home to give sympathy.

I walked around the house sucking my throbbing finger, finally arriving at the stairway. The telephone! Quickly, I ran for the footstool in the parlor and dragged it to the landing. Climbing up, I unhooked the receiver in the parlor and held it to my ear.

"Information, please" I said into the mouth piece just above my head.

A click or two and a small clear voice spoke into my ear.

"Information."

"I hurt my finger..." I wailed into the phone, the tears came readily enough now that I had an audience.

"Isn't your mother home?" came the question.

"Nobody's home but me," I blubbered.

"Are you bleeding?" the voice asked.

"No," I replied. "I hit my finger with the hammer and it hurts."

"Can you open the icebox?" she asked.

I said I could.

"Then chip off a little bit of ice and hold it to your finger," said the voice...

After that, I called "Information Please" for everything.. I asked her for help with my geography, and she told me where Philadelphia was. She helped me with my math.

She told me my pet chipmunk that I had caught in the park just the day before, would eat fruit and nuts.

Then, there was the time Petey, our pet canary, died. I called, "Information Please," and told her the sad story. She listened, and then said things grown-ups say to soothe a child. But I was not consoled. I asked her, "Why is it that birds should sing so beautifully and bring joy to all families, only to end up as a heap of feathers on the bottom of a cage?"

She must have sensed my deep concern, for she said quietly, "Wayne, always remember that there are other worlds to sing in."

Somehow I felt better.

Another day I was on the telephone, "Information Please."

"Information," said in the now familiar voice. "How do I spell fix?" I asked.

All this took place in a small town in the Pacific Northwest. When I was nine years old, we moved across the country to Boston. I missed my friend very much. "Information Please" belonged in that old wooden box back home and I somehow never thought of trying the shiny new phone that sat on the table in the hall. As I grew into my teens, the memories of those childhood conversations never really left me.

Often, in moments of doubt and perplexity I would recall the serene sense of security I had then. I appreciated now how patient, understanding, and kind she was to have spent her time on a little boy.

A few years later, on my way west to college, my plane put down in Seattle. I had about a half-hour or so between planes. I spent 15 minutes or so on the phone with my sister, who lived there now. Then without thinking what I was doing, I dialed my hometown operator and said, "Information Please."

Miraculously, I heard the small, clear voice I knew so well.

"Information."

I hadn't planned this, but I heard myself saying,

"Could you please tell me how to spell fix?"

There was a long pause. Then came the soft spoken answer, "I guess your finger must have healed by now."

I laughed, "So it's really you," I said. "I wonder if you have any idea how much you meant to me during that time?"

I wonder," she said, "if you know how much your calls meant to me. I never had any children and I used to look forward to your calls."

I told her how often I had thought of her over the years and I asked if I could call her again when I came back to visit my sister.

"Please do", she said. "Just ask for Sally."

Three months later I was back in Seattle. A different voice answered, "Information." I asked for Sally.

"Are you a friend?" she said.

"Yes, a very old friend," I answered.

"I'm sorry to have to tell you this," she said. "Sally had been working part time the last few years because she was sick. She died five weeks ago."

Before I could hang up, she said, "Wait a minute, did you say your name was Wayne?"

Yes," I answered.

"Well, Sally left a message for you. She wrote it down in case you called. Let me read it to you."

The note said, "Tell him there are other worlds to sing in. He'll know what I mean."

I thanked her and hung up. I knew what Sally meant.

Never underestimate the impression you may make on others.

Whose life have you touched today?

◆ TWO SCHOLARSHIPS WILL BE AWARDED. 1ST AWARD: $2,000 / 2ND AWARD: $1,000 ◆

2017 Topic: Peace Prayer of St. Francis of Assisi: Lord, make me an instrument of thy peace. Where there is hatred, let me sow love; Where there is injury, pardon; Where there is doubt, faith; Where there is despair, hope; Where there is darkness, light; Where there is sadness, joy. O Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled as to console; To be understood as to understand; To be loved as to love; For it is in giving that we receive; It is in pardoning that we are pardoned; And it is in dying to self that we are born to eternal life.
