DANIEL CUNNINGHAM—11 YEAR-OLD HERO!

Member Mike & Anne Marie Cunningham sent this article from Westchester's LoHud News. It is about their son Daniel. Congratulations Daniel!!! We are all so proud of you.

10/19/12 Written by Robert Marchant

Quick-thinking Blue Mountain pupil, 11, saves his choking friend with Heimlich

CORTLANDT — When he saw his good friend in big trouble, Daniel Cunningham, 11, came to the rescue.

It was just after lunch hour at the Blue Mountain Middle School when the sixth-graders were headed out for recess on Thursday. One student, Emerson Alcock, ate his cheeseburger a little too fast, according to school authorities, and started to choke in a school stairway.

His friend Daniel knew something was wrong.

"I was scared — I didn't know if he was choking, or if he was going to throw up," Daniel recalled Friday. "I went over and did the — what's it called again? — the maneuver." Daniel also asked another classmate, Donte White, to run to the nurse's office for help.

Out came a big chunk of meat, and Daniel earned praise for his quick thinking. Blue Mountain Middle School Principal John Owens said it was always rewarding to see students helping each other, and he made sure the school heard about the incident during afternoon announcements Friday. "I called him the Heimlich hero," said Owens, "We promote 'allied behavior' here, trying to get kids to help out, to take those steps to do something positive. This was an extremely good example."

Daniel's mother, Anne Marie Cunningham, said, "I'm extremely proud. Daniel's a good kid, he's a friend to everybody." She said he learned to perform the Heimlich maneuver — squeezing the lower abdomen near the sternum from behind — practicing it with his older brother, Nicholas.

Emerson said a lesson had been learned. "Don't put too much in your mouth, don't run while you're eating, and eat with a friend," he said.

Daniel said he was happy to help a buddy, though he was a little weary of all the notoriety. "I felt good about what I did, though I can live without all the attention," he said.

The reward for a hero: his favorite chicken wings for dinner.

SUPERSTORM SANDY submitted by Ann Horan Hemsing

We hope you are all well and that you made it safely through Hurricane Sandy. Our thoughts and prayers go to those who were affected by this storm and its aftermath. Kolping-On-Hudson fared well. A couple of trees down and water in the soccer field is the only apparent damage. Although Kolping on Hudson made out pretty well after Sandy blew through, Blessed Mother's house came tumbling down all around her! The really cool thing is she stood right up to Mother Nature and even kept her flowers with her. This is the statue that is down on the field. I think Father Kolping was watching over her. What do you think?

While we are on the subject of KOH, I cannot let the season go by without giving a huge thanks to our new and much improved secretary, Muriel Fullam! She did an outstanding job of keeping us posted each week about the going ons at KOH for the weekend. We have never been so well informed. She really kept us going with our Friday night Happy Hour, which I for one was sorry to see end. We are really lucky to have such a sweetie as our secretary!

Stories of Interest

“THE REPENTANT TRAITORESS” submitted by Martin A. Kelly

Mildred Gillars, infamously known as “Axis Sally”, was born in Ohio, U.S.A. in 1900. Her early life was unremarkable “rolling with the punches” during the First World War, prohibition, the “roaring twenties”, and the “great depression” like her fellow countrymen.

Mildred “reached for the stars” and hoping to be an actress, arrived in New York City friendless. She enrolled at Hunter College and came under the influence of a pro-German professor. Lonely in a huge city, she made acquaintances of some Germans and found herself traveling to what was by now “Das Reich” and was promised a job in the American desk of a German newspaper.

War clouds were gathering, and Mildred was an American citizen, but choose to remain in one of the belligerent nations. For some unknown reason she accepted a job in the Ministry of Information (Propaganda). Perhaps it was because of the death of a friend and her baby in an air raid, who knows?

December 7, 1941 America entered the war; but, Mildred stayed at her post and accepted a more destructive position. Goebbels was looking for a female with a faultless American accent “who could get under the skin” of American servicemen and demoralize them.

Calling herself “Midge at the Mike” she served a program of hatred, jealousy, and self pity. Ironically some of her data originated from British Secret Service. They had a double-agent working for them, code name “Garbo.” To build the German’s confidence in Garbo, the English supplied him with tidbits of true information. The English plan was to make Garbo completely trustworthy; then, to the $64,000 question. Where would the D-Day Landings be? A false location would be supplied. Midge put the data she got via “Garbo” to use vexing U.S. servicemen’s morale.

Germany surrendered and Mildred was arrested and tried for sedition. Ironically if she had remained in her broadcast studio, the two witnesses needed to the same act for the conviction under this law would be harder to find. She however, visited P.O.W. camps to record interviews with internees for broadcast back home. Sufficient witnesses were found, and she was convicted of giving “aid and comfort to the enemy.”

Confined to a federal penitentiary she repented and “remade herself”. Embracing the Roman Catholic faith, she became a model prisoner. Possibly in an act of self punishment, she did not apply for parole as early as allowed but stayed two additional years in confinement. On release, she returned to college for a teaching degree; and taught at a religious-run high school: French, German, and music, and led a staid life. In 1988, she passed on and is interred in an unmarked grave in Ohio.

NEWS FROM PHILADELPHIA KOLPING

submitted by Jack McGee

The year 2013 will have great significance for Catholics worldwide. Pope Benedict XVI has called for a special “Year of Faith” to be celebrated from October 2012 to December 2013. During this Year of Faith we are called upon to spend extra time in Prayer and study to increase our own “faith” as well as getting involved in activities to spread the faith through the New Evangelization. At the same time, 2013 marks the 200th birthday of Blessed Adolph Kolping (born Dec. 8, 1813). The International Kolping Committee is asking all Kolping Families around the world to start planning events during 2013 to highlight Father Kolping and all the good work his Society continues to do. In that spirit, as mentioned in the May-June issue of our newsletter, we encourage all our members to help form projects and donate service time to make Kolping truly committed to the ongoing mission of Fr. Kolping.

Kolping Philadelphia members who have about 20 years or more of membership in the Kolping Family can remember the many weekends we could meet at the Kolping Park on Rising Sun Avenue and have picnics and BBQ’s. It was a fun time for all and helped our members and their families grow together as the Kolping Family. Now that we meet on the grounds of Cannstatter VW, we have been able to schedule several events and BBQ’s for this summer, and we hope for years to come. Help make these fun gatherings a time to spend with your own family and the extended Kolping brothers and sisters.

It’s no fairy tale—angels are for real

submitted by Jack McGee

“I don’t believe in angels,” said the 9-year-old. And so Grandma, at one time a religious educator, began helping him with the truths of the faith, in preparation for his First Holy Communion. She thanked him for trusting her enough to be honest—a virtue he already had in common with Jesus, she told him. “My dear,” she then added, “I assure you angels are for real.” As a matter of fact, Jimmy had his own Guardian Angel—as so other children and indeed, she emphasized, every one of us. Sitting at the dining room table where the whole family often celebrated holiday and holy day meals, she helped Jimmy find the Gospel passage where Jesus taught people about angels and their work. And especially so with children whom God (and family members) see as precious gifts. “I assure you,” Jesus, surrounded by children, told the disciples, “their angels in heaven constantly behold my heavenly Father’s face” (Mt 18:10). This is a way of saying that angels are God’s messengers, given the job of guiding us throughout our lifetime. She sang a line from a hymn, picking up a teaching from the psalms the Jewish people sang over thousands of years. A psalm that speaks to the work and power of those pure spirits we call angels. “For God commands the angels to guard you in all of your ways.” (Psalm 91:11). The Gospels remind us that Angels sang in the night sky over Bethlehem, announcing the Birth of the long-awaited Savior; and that it was angels who comforted the Lord—when even the Apostles slept through his Agony in the Garden. The Church has long encouraged us to keep in touch with our angels, something we do, Jimmy’s Grandma emphasized, in prayer. The most popular Prayer to our Guardian Angel is easy to remember, because it is a short poem with rhyme: Angel sent by God to guide me, be my light and walk beside me; be my guardian and protect me; on the paths of life direct me. Amen.
